Jonathan David is the Clearinghouse Information Dissemination and Training Specialist and liaison to the UPenn Collaborative on Community Integration. He works to ensure that the latest research and policy information concerning people with psychiatric disabilities gets out into the world and into the hands of the people who are most affected. He also surveys consumer-run service providers to identify model programs or practices that help people living with mental illnesses participate in mainstream community life.

Before joining the Clearinghouse, Dr. David worked at the University of Pennsylvania School of Social Policy and Social Practice to coordinate the research on a study that looked at reasons why people with mental illnesses on probation and parole in the County of Philadelphia sometimes return to jail. He has experience as a researcher, writer and teacher, and has personal experience with mental illness. He has taught courses at the University of Pennsylvania, at the University of the Arts, as well as several other Philadelphia area educational institutions.
