Deciding whether you want to work is an important life decision. To make this decision, you’ll need to know the answers to the next several questions. Read each question and write your answer on the line provided:

1. Is working what you want to do at this point in your life, given other things that are going on?

2. What kind of work would you like to do?

3. Where do you want to work?

4. How many hours a week do you want to work at first, and later on down the road?

5. How much money would you like to make and how might this affect your social security benefits, if you receive them?
- Does your program terminate clients from services even though the clients still want to continue receiving services?

- What is the average amount of time people take to get a job in your agency? 6 months or less or more than 6 months?

- Do staff at your agency provide benefits counseling for people on SSI/SSDI?

- Will your agency accept clients who want to work AND keep their SSI or SSDI benefits at the same time?

- Does your program offer peer support services from people who have had mental health problems?

- Does your program allow family or friends to be involved in the process of finding and keeping a job?

- How many of your clients also are clients of our state Vocational Rehabilitation agency? At least 50% or less than 50%?

- Does your program help clients keep their jobs if they go in the hospital or need to take some time off for mental health reasons?

- Will your staff talk frequently with my case manager or psychiatrist if I ask them to?

- How many of your clients have a psychiatric disability? At least 25% or less than 25%?

6. Do you already have the skills and qualifications you need?

7. If you’re not ready for your ideal job right now, do you want to work at another job while you get ready? If so, what kind of job would that be?

8. Would you like to do volunteer work instead of paid work?

The answers to these questions will help you decide which road to take to employment. All roads discussed in this booklet start with your decision to get a job as soon as possible. Other options, such as going to school to get a degree, job skills training, and volunteering also are good choices that you should discuss with family, friends, and service providers you trust. The different roads to finding employment are briefly described on the following pages. Read each description carefully, and think about whether it matches your needs and preferences. Then choose the option that best fits what you’d like to do right now.
Different Roads to Work
Which Road Should You Follow?

Road #1: Doing it on your own

This road to employment involves competing with other people to get and keep a job. This may sound scary, but it’s how most people get their jobs, including your family and service providers. Being employed competitively means that you are working in a regular work setting, alongside coworkers who aren’t mental health clients, and you’re working for an hourly wage, usually at or above minimum wage.

Doing it on your own means that you conduct your own job search using newspaper Want Ads, asking people you know if there are openings where they work, or looking for Help Wanted signs at local businesses. You handle problems at your job on your own, or by discussing them later with your friends, family, or service providers. Your boss judges how good of a job you are doing, and tells you what you are doing right and wrong. Both you and your boss decide how long you keep your job.

Road #2: Supported employment

This road to employment also involves getting competitive employment (a job that is open to any applicant). But you don’t do it entirely on your own. Supported

Optional: List of Questions to Give to Program Staff

(Tear out page and give to staff member.)

- How many of your clients work in competitive jobs that are open to anyone who applies?
  At least 80% or less than 80%?

- How many of your clients work in settings where none of the coworkers are disabled?
  At least 80% or less than 80%?

- Can people who are working continue to receive support from program staff for as long as they want?

- Does your program place clients in jobs that are permanent?

- How many of your clients earn minimum wage or above?
  At least 80% or less than 80%?

- How many of your clients earn $10 an hour or more?
  At least 10% or less than 10%?

- How many of your clients get a job in the field they want?
  At least 50% or less than 50%?

- Does your program work with anyone interested in working, regardless of their abilities?

- Does your program have in-person vocational support after 5pm?
employment helps individuals with any type or degree of disability look for, get, and keep a job. A service provider (also called an employment specialist or placement specialist) helps you decide what you’d like to do and then helps you find that job. If you need special training or support, that person provides it after you get the job (sometimes the employer does this instead). The job you get is a competitive job, as described above. You work in places and positions that match your preferences and abilities.

Supported employment will help you every step of the way in deciding what you want to do, how to deal with any problems you encounter, and whether to tell your boss and coworkers about your mental health difficulties. You also receive help deciding how to coordinate working with receiving social security disability benefits. This is especially important if you decide you want to work, but you still want to continue to receive your benefits. Also, with supported employment, the assistance you receive has no time limit. You can continue to have help available after you’ve been on the job for a while, or if you decide to look for a better job while still holding your old one.

ROAD #3: Transitional employment

On this road, you get the assistance of an employment specialist and you work in a real job setting for minimum wage or above. But the job you hold is temporary and does not belong to you. It is called a transitional placement, and it belongs to the service delivery
What To Do Next?

If you found your supported employment program - congratulations! Although your journey has just begun, at least you know you are on the right road. Plus, you know that you will receive high quality services that research has shown to be effective.

If you haven’t found your supported employment program - try not to be too discouraged. Good programs are hard to find, but you should continue to search. After looking for a while, if you still cannot find a good program, decide if you want to settle for the best one you can find. Talk this over with people you trust and who you know well. Or go back to the beginning of this booklet and consider other options, such as searching for a job on your own, volunteering, going to college, or enrolling in a vocational/technical school.

The important thing is to keep moving forward toward your goal of getting a job. Remember that most people who have had mental health difficulties can work and want to work. You are smart and creative enough to figure out a way to make that happen.

ROAD #4: Sheltered employment

This is a very different road, and one you should take with caution. On this road, you work in a sheltered workshop, where your coworkers all have disabilities and you make less than minimum wage. Often, you do a small part of a larger job, called “piece work,” and you are paid according to how much work you finish, not according to an hourly wage.

Most sheltered workshops are run by social service agencies, and little or no assistance is offered to help you get a better job after you’ve done sheltered work. On the other hand, you can receive a lot of help from staff inside the workshop whenever you have difficulty. Most people don’t make much money in a sheltered workshop, so their benefits are not affected. However, sheltered workshops are not the only way to work and keep your benefits. You can keep your SSI and SSDI checks on the supported employment road, too.

agency that helps you. You work at this job for a period of time (usually 6 months) and then move on to another transitional placement or perhaps to competitive employment. You usually have fewer choices about what kinds of work you do in transitional placements since they are designed to give you experience, not to be your permanent job. If you want to choose the kind of work that you do in a job that you can keep as long as you want, transitional employment is not for you.
How to Interpret the Total Score

16-19: This is an excellent program and you definitely should consider getting your supported employment services here.

11-15: This is a good program. If you think it matches your current needs and preferences, you should consider getting your supported employment services here.

6-10: This program is missing some of the things that make supported employment successful for people who have mental health challenges. If staff will work with you to add some of the ingredients that are missing, you might want to consider getting your services here.

0-5: This program has a few of the basic ingredients of supported employment, but is missing many of the elements that make it effective for mental health consumers. If you have other choices, look elsewhere. If not, see whether staff will work with you to add some of the ingredients that are missing. If not, you may be better off seeking employment on your own.

Which Employment Road Do You Want to Take?

Competitive ~
If you want to seek competitive work on your own, you might start by looking in the newspaper or talking to employed people about job openings where they work.

Transitional ~
If you want transitional employment, you should ask your service provider to help you see whether there is a program that offers it in your local area.

Sheltered ~
If you want to work in a sheltered workshop, you should discuss this with your service provider or other people you know who work in one.

Supported ~
If supported employment seems to be what you are looking for, contact your local department of vocational rehabilitation or department of mental health and ask them to recommend some agencies that offer it. As you find and then visit those agencies, this booklet will help you judge the quality of the services they offer.

If supported employment is what you want, turn to the next page...
How Do You Get Started?

1. Schedule an appointment with a staff member at an agency that offers supported employment. Let her or him know that this appointment is just to learn about the agency, not to join it.

2. Because this is a time to get all of your questions answered in an unhurried manner, ask if the appointment can last an hour. If not, tell the person you will need at least a half hour.

3. Don’t forget to bring this booklet, a notebook, and a pen or pencil with you.

4. When you arrive, thank the staff member for taking the time to meet with you.

5. Near the beginning of the interview, let the staff member know that you have nineteen questions that you’d like to ask about supported employment. Explain that the questions are just to help you get clearer information about the supported employment services the agency offers. Emphasize that the questions are about the agency’s supported employment program, not other types of employment programs it offers.

6. Slowly read each question out loud and check off each answer.

How to Score Your Answers

Once you have left the meeting, find a quiet place to score the interview. To score this survey, all you need to be able to do is count to “19.”

First, add up the answers to the first 5 questions. Count 1 point for each answer in the Green Zone and 0 points for each answer in the Red Zone. Write the total in the box beneath the first 5 questions.

Second, add up the answers to all 19 questions and write the total in the box under the last question.

To find out how the program rates, write these two numbers on the lines in the box below.

ADD YOUR SCORES HERE

Score for first 5 questions = __________

If answers to ALL of the first 5 questions are in the Red Zone, your score will equal 0. This means that the program does not meet the official definition of supported employment and you should probably look for another program. There is no need to add up any further scores. If you checked an answer in the Green Zone for at least one of the 5 questions, add up the score for all 19 questions and write it on the line below.

Total score for all 19 questions = __________

See the following page to interpret the TOTAL score.
What do the Red and Green Zones Mean?

In this booklet, the Green and Red Zones have meanings similar to the stoplight you see at a street corner. An answer in the Green Zone is good. It means that this agency has services that benefit you according to research about “what works” for people with mental health challenges. The more answers you check off in the Green Zone, the better the program, and the more you'll want to “GO” there for services. Answers in the Red Zone mean that the program does not offer services that would benefit you.

These Zones will help you see, even during the meeting, if this is a program you want to join or not. If during the interview you notice that most of the answers are falling in the Red Zone, you know that this program is missing some services that are important and good for you.

The first five questions ask about very important services that a supported employment program should offer. If all of the answers to these first five questions are in the Red Zone, then you know immediately that this program is missing some vital services. You’ll want to “STOP” and think before you decide to attend such a program.

7. If you feel uncomfortable reading the questions to the staff member, practice asking them to a friend, read them out loud to yourself, or use the “Optional List of Questions to Give to Program Staff” at the end of this booklet. Remove this page, give it to the staff member, and have her or him read and answer the questions while you mark the answers on your copy.

8. Be sure to ask your own questions as they occur to you. You may want to write down your own questions before the interview. There is space in this booklet for these questions.

9. It may be difficult to get all of your questions answered in one session. So at the end of the interview, thank the staff member and let her or him know that you may call back with a few more questions. Be sure to put all of the contact information that you have in a safe place for future reference.

10. Do not add up the answers until after you have left the interview.

As you can see from the above, using this booklet means that you will be interviewing the staff member. If this makes you feel uncomfortable, it’s understandable. It might help to think about this situation in a new way. What you’re really doing is just talking, one person asking another person questions. Asking questions is a natural part of what happens during a visit. So relax, breathe, and take your time.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Question</th>
<th>Green Zone</th>
<th>Red Zone</th>
<th>Score</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>How many of your clients work in competitive jobs that are open to anyone who applies?</td>
<td>At least 80%</td>
<td>Less than 80%</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How many of your clients work in settings where none of the coworkers is disabled?</td>
<td>At least 80%</td>
<td>Less than 80%</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Can people who are working continue to receive support from program staff for as long as they want?</td>
<td>Yes</td>
<td>No</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Does your program place clients in jobs that are permanent?</td>
<td>Yes</td>
<td>No</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How many of your clients earn minimum wage or above?</td>
<td>At least 80%</td>
<td>Less than 80%</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How many of your clients earn $10 an hour or more?</td>
<td>At least 10%</td>
<td>Less than 10%</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How many of your clients get a job in the field they want?</td>
<td>At least 50%</td>
<td>Less than 50%</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Does your program work with anyone interested in working, regardless of her/his abilities?</td>
<td>Yes</td>
<td>No</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Does your program have in-person vocational support after 5pm?</td>
<td>Yes</td>
<td>No</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Does your program terminate clients from services even though the clients still want to continue receiving services?</td>
<td>No</td>
<td>Yes</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What is the average amount of time people take to get a job in your agency?</td>
<td>6 months or less</td>
<td>More than 6 months</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Do staff at your agency provide benefits counseling for people on SSI/SSDI?</td>
<td>Yes</td>
<td>No</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Will your agency accept clients who want to work AND keep their SSI and SSDI benefits at the same time?</td>
<td>Yes</td>
<td>No</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Does your program offer peer support services from people who have had mental health problems?</td>
<td>Yes</td>
<td>No</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Does your program allow family or friends to be involved in the process of finding and keeping a job?</td>
<td>Yes</td>
<td>No</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How many of your clients also are clients of our state Vocational Rehabilitation agency?</td>
<td>At least 50%</td>
<td>Less than 50%</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How many of your clients earn minimum wage or above?</td>
<td>At least 10%</td>
<td>Less than 10%</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How many of your clients get a job in the field they want?</td>
<td>At least 50%</td>
<td>Less than 50%</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Does your program work with anyone interested in working, regardless of her/his abilities?</td>
<td>Yes</td>
<td>No</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Does your program have in-person vocational support after 5pm?</td>
<td>Yes</td>
<td>No</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

TOTAL SCORE for all 19 questions =
Check off each answer:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Question</th>
<th>Green Zone</th>
<th>Red Zone</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>How many of your clients work in competitive jobs that are open to anyone who applies?</td>
<td>At least 80%</td>
<td>Less than 80%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How many of your clients work in settings where none of the coworkers is disabled?</td>
<td>At least 80%</td>
<td>Less than 80%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Can people who are working continue to receive support from program staff for as long as they want?</td>
<td>Yes</td>
<td>No</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Does your program place clients in jobs that are permanent?</td>
<td>Yes</td>
<td>No</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How many of your clients earn minimum wage or above?</td>
<td>At least 80%</td>
<td>Less than 80%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How many of your clients earn $10 an hour or more? At least 10% or less than 10%?</td>
<td>At least 10%</td>
<td>Less than 10%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How many of your clients get a job in the field they want? At least 50% or less than 50%?</td>
<td>At least 50%</td>
<td>Less than 50%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Does your program work with anyone interested in working, regardless of her/his abilities?</td>
<td>Yes</td>
<td>No</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Does your program have in-person vocational support after 5pm?</td>
<td>Yes</td>
<td>No</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Does your program terminate clients from services even though the clients still want to continue receiving services?</td>
<td>No</td>
<td>Yes</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What is the average amount of time people take to get a job in your agency? 6 months or less or more than 6 months?</td>
<td>6 months or less</td>
<td>More than 6 months</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Do staff at your agency provide benefits counseling for people on SSI/SSDI?</td>
<td>Yes</td>
<td>No</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Will your agency accept clients who want to work AND keep their SSI and SSDI benefits at the same time?</td>
<td>Yes</td>
<td>No</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Does your program offer peer support services from people who have had mental health problems?</td>
<td>Yes</td>
<td>No</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Does your program allow family or friends to to be involved in the process of finding and keeping a job?</td>
<td>Yes</td>
<td>No</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How many of your clients also are clients of our state Vocational Rehabilitation agency? At least 50% or less than 50%?</td>
<td>At least 50%</td>
<td>Less than 50%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Does your program help clients keep their jobs if they go in the hospital or need to take some time off for mental health reasons?</td>
<td>Yes</td>
<td>No</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Will your staff talk frequently with my case manager or psychiatrist if I ask them to?</td>
<td>Yes</td>
<td>No</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How many of your clients have a psychiatric disability? At least 25% or less than 25%?</td>
<td>At least 25%</td>
<td>Less than 25%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Add 1 point for each answer in the Green Zone and 0 for each answer in the Red Zone.

Score for first 5 questions only = _______________

How many of your clients have in-person vocational support after 5pm? | Yes | No

TOTAL SCORE for all 19 questions = _______________
As you can see from the above, using this booklet means that you will be interviewing the staff member. If this makes you feel uncomfortable, it’s understandable. It might help to think about this situation in a new way. What you’re really doing is just talking, one person asking another person questions. Asking questions is a natural part of what happens during a visit. So relax, breathe, and take your time.

7. If you feel uncomfortable reading the questions to the staff member, practice asking them to a friend, read them out loud to yourself, or use the “Optional List of Questions to Give to Program Staff” at the end of this booklet. Remove this page, give it to the staff member, and have her or him read and answer the questions while you mark the answers on your copy.

8. Be sure to ask your own questions as they occur to you. You may want to write down your own questions before the interview. There is space in this booklet for these questions.

9. It may be difficult to get all of your questions answered in one session. So at the end of the interview, thank the staff member and let her or him know that you may call back with a few more questions. Be sure to put all of the contact information that you have in a safe place for future reference.

10. Do not add up the answers until after you have left the interview.

As you can see from the above, using this booklet means that you will be interviewing the staff member. If this makes you feel uncomfortable, it’s understandable. It might help to think about this situation in a new way. What you’re really doing is just talking, one person asking another person questions. Asking questions is a natural part of what happens during a visit. So relax, breathe, and take your time.
How Do You Get Started?

1. Schedule an appointment with a staff member at an agency that offers supported employment. Let her or him know that this appointment is just to learn about the agency, not to join it.

2. Because this is a time to get all of your questions answered in an unhurried manner, ask if the appointment can last an hour. If not, tell the person you will need at least a half hour.

3. Don’t forget to bring this booklet, a notebook, and a pen or pencil with you.

4. When you arrive, thank the staff member for taking the time to meet with you.

5. Near the beginning of the interview, let the staff member know that you have nineteen questions that you’d like to ask about supported employment. Explain that the questions are just to help you get clearer information about the supported employment services the agency offers. Emphasize that the questions are about the agency’s supported employment program, not other types of employment programs it offers.

6. Slowly read each question out loud and check off each answer.

How to Score Your Answers

Once you have left the meeting, find a quiet place to score the interview. To score this survey, all you need to be able to do is count to “19.”

First, add up the answers to the first 5 questions. Count 1 point for each answer in the Green Zone and 0 points for each answer in the Red Zone. Write the total in the box beneath the first 5 questions.

Second, add up the answers to all 19 questions and write the total in the box under the last question.

To find out how the program rates, write these two numbers on the lines in the box below.

ADD YOUR SCORES HERE

Score for first 5 questions = __________

If answers to ALL of the first 5 questions are in the Red Zone, your score will equal 0. This means that the program does not meet the official definition of supported employment and you should probably look for another program. There is no need to add up any further scores. If you checked an answer in the Green Zone for at least one of the 5 questions, add up the score for all 19 questions and write it on the line below.

Total score for all 19 questions = __________

See the following page to interpret the TOTAL score.
Which Employment Road Do You Want to Take?

Competitive ~
If you want to seek competitive work on your own, you might start by looking in the newspaper or talking to employed people about job openings where they work.

Transitional ~
If you want transitional employment, you should ask your service provider to help you see whether there is a program that offers it in your local area.

Sheltered ~
If you want to work in a sheltered workshop, you should discuss this with your service provider or other people you know who work in one.

Supported ~
If supported employment seems to be what you are looking for, contact your local department of vocational rehabilitation or department of mental health and ask them to recommend some agencies that offer it. As you find and then visit those agencies, this booklet will help you judge the quality of the services they offer.

If supported employment is what you want, turn to the next page...

---

How to Interpret the Total Score

16-19: This is an excellent program and you definitely should consider getting your supported employment services here.

11-15: This is a good program. If you think it matches your current needs and preferences, you should consider getting your supported employment services here.

6-10: This program is missing some of the things that make supported employment successful for people who have mental health challenges. If staff will work with you to add some of the ingredients that are missing, you might want to consider getting your services here.

0-5: This program has a few of the basic ingredients of supported employment, but is missing many of the elements that make it effective for mental health consumers. If you have other choices, look elsewhere. If not, see whether staff will work with you to add some of the ingredients that are missing. If not, you may be better off seeking employment on your own.
agency that helps you. You work at this job for a period of time (usually 6 months) and then move on to another transitional placement or perhaps to competitive employment. You usually have fewer choices about what kinds of work you do in transitional placements since they are designed to give you experience, not to be your permanent job. If you want to choose the kind of work that you do in a job that you can keep as long as you want, transitional employment is not for you.

ROAD #4: Sheltered employment

This is a very different road, and one you should take with caution. On this road, you work in a sheltered workshop, where your coworkers all have disabilities and you make less than minimum wage. Often, you do a small part of a larger job, called “piece work,” and you are paid according to how much work you finish, not according to an hourly wage.

Most sheltered workshops are run by social service agencies, and little or no assistance is offered to help you get a better job after you've done sheltered work. On the other hand, you can receive a lot of help from staff inside the workshop whenever you have difficulty. Most people don't make much money in a sheltered workshop, so their benefits are not affected. However, sheltered workshops are not the only way to work and keep your benefits. You can keep your SSI and SSDI checks on the supported employment road, too.

If you found your supported employment program - congratulations! Although your journey has just begun, at least you know you are on the right road. Plus, you know that you will receive high quality services that research has shown to be effective.

If you haven't found your supported employment program - try not to be too discouraged. Good programs are hard to find, but you should continue to search. After looking for a while, if you still cannot find a good program, decide if you want to settle for the best one you can find. Talk this over with people you trust and who you know well. Or go back to the beginning of this booklet and consider other options, such as searching for a job on your own, volunteering, going to college, or enrolling in a vocational/technical school.

The important thing is to keep moving forward toward your goal of getting a job. Remember that most people who have had mental health difficulties can work and want to work. You are smart and creative enough to figure out a way to make that happen.
employment helps individuals with any type or degree of disability look for, get, and keep a job. A service provider (also called an employment specialist or placement specialist) helps you decide what you’d like to do and then helps you find that job. If you need special training or support, that person provides it after you get the job (sometimes the employer does this instead). The job you get is a competitive job, as described above. You work in places and positions that match your preferences and abilities.

Supported employment will help you every step of the way in deciding what you want to do, how to deal with any problems you encounter, and whether to tell your boss and coworkers about your mental health difficulties. You also receive help deciding how to coordinate working with receiving social security disability benefits. This is especially important if you decide you want to work, but you still want to continue to receive your benefits. Also, with supported employment, the assistance you receive has no time limit. You can continue to have help available after you’ve been on the job for a while, or if you decide to look for a better job while still holding your old one.

ROAD #3: Transitional employment

On this road, you get the assistance of an employment specialist and you work in a real job setting for minimum wage or above. But the job you hold is temporary and does not belong to you. It is called a transitional placement, and it belongs to the service delivery

---

Optional: Write additional questions to ask below

1. ______________________________________________

2. ______________________________________________

3. ______________________________________________

4. ______________________________________________

5. ______________________________________________

6. ______________________________________________
Different Roads to Work
Which Road Should You Follow?

ROAD #1: Doing it on your own

This road to employment involves competing with other people to get and keep a job. This may sound scary, but it's how most people get their jobs, including your family and service providers. Being employed competitively means that you are working in a regular work setting, alongside coworkers who aren't mental health clients, and you're working for an hourly wage, usually at or above minimum wage.

Doing it on your own means that you conduct your own job search using newspaper Want Ads, asking people you know if there are openings where they work, or looking for Help Wanted signs at local businesses. You handle problems at your job on your own, or by discussing them later with your friends, family, or service providers. Your boss judges how good of a job you are doing, and tells you what you are doing right and wrong. Both you and your boss decide how long you keep your job.

ROAD #2: Supported employment

This road to employment also involves getting competitive employment (a job that is open to any applicant). But you don't do it entirely on your own. Supported

Optional: List of Questions to Give to Program Staff

(Tear out page and give to staff member.)

- How many of your clients work in competitive jobs that are open to anyone who applies?
  At least 80% or less than 80%?

- How many of your clients work in settings where none of the coworkers are disabled?
  At least 80% or less than 80%?

- Can people who are working continue to receive support from program staff for as long as they want?

- Does your program place clients in jobs that are permanent?

- How many of your clients earn minimum wage or above?
  At least 80% or less than 80%?

- How many of your clients earn $10 an hour or more?
  At least 10% or less than 10%?

- How many of your clients get a job in the field they want?
  At least 50% or less than 50%?

- Does your program work with anyone interested in working, regardless of their abilities?

- Does your program have in-person vocational support after 5pm?
6. Do you already have the skills and qualifications you need?

7. If you’re not ready for your ideal job right now, do you want to work at another job while you get ready? If so, what kind of job would that be?

8. Would you like to do volunteer work instead of paid work?

The answers to these questions will help you decide which road to take to employment. All roads discussed in this booklet start with your decision to get a job as soon as possible. Other options, such as going to school to get a degree, job skills training, and volunteering also are good choices that you should discuss with family, friends, and service providers you trust.

The different roads to finding employment are briefly described on the following pages. Read each description carefully, and think about whether it matches your needs and preferences. Then choose the option that best fits what you’d like to do right now.
Deciding whether you want to work is an important life decision. To make this decision, you’ll need to know the answers to the next several questions. Read each question and write your answer on the line provided:

1. Is working what you want to do at this point in your life, given other things that are going on?

2. What kind of work would you like to do?

3. Where do you want to work?

4. How many hours a week do you want to work at first, and later on down the road?

5. How much money would you like to make and how might this affect your social security benefits, if you receive them?
Seeking Supported Employment: What You Need to Know

The Center is supported by the National Institute on Disability and Rehabilitation Research, U.S. Department of Education, and the Center for Mental Health Services, Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (Cooperative Agreement H133B000700). The opinions expressed herein do not necessarily reflect the position, policy, or views of either agency, and no official endorsement should be inferred.